Twenty-two millions of dollars spent in drink last week! Out of that sum 58,666 men engaged in the manufacturing of the drink received only 4 per cent of tust amount in wages, at the rate of $15 per week, making a total of $880,000. If the $22,000,000 had been spent in legitimate manufactures, the laboring men-mechanics, artisans, stc.-would have given employment to 140,000 men for one week at $15 each, By spending the $22,000,000 in drink, 181,3s4 (three hundred and eighty-one thousand three hundred and thirtyfour) men were deprived of the opportunity of earning $15 each last week.

WOMEN MUST SLEEP.

Avoid Nervous Prostration.

If you are dangerously sick what is the first duty of your physician? He quiets the nervous system, he deadens the pain, and you sleep well.
Friends ask, "what is the cause?"

and the answer comes in pitying tones, nervous prostration. It came upon you so quietly in the beginning, that you were not alarmed, and when sleep deserted you night after night until your eyes fairly burned in the darkness, then you tossed in nervous agony praying for sleep.

You ought to have known that when you ceased to be regular in your courses, and you grew irritable with-out cause, that there was serious

You ought to know that indigestion, exhaustion, womb displacements, fainting, dizziness, headache, and backache send the nerves wild with affright, and you cannot sleep.

PHYSICAL CULTURE THE METH-OD USED.

Remarkable Results in the Case of Jac ques Menod, a Boy of 16-Massage Followed by a Gymnastic Course-Imperfect Physique.

Dr. Bourneville, the great French succeeded in discovering an unfailing cure for idiots and is doing phenomenal work in ameliorating the condition of abnormal infants and adults. The results of this humanitarian's work in the Medico-Pedagogical Instiing topic in medical circles on the concure have gone the round of the press and of magazines during the past months. Dr. Bourneville is receiving letters every day with crested headings imploring him to do something for some young scion of a royal house. The writers want the physician to come to their castles, but to all these entreaties there is but one reply: "Send your child to Vitry." To mix with the plebian crowd in the Vitry institute is a sacrifice which patrician pride is not always willing to make, so that most of the inmates belong to the proletarian class. Dr. Bourneville said in an interview a few days ago: "Nothing has been left undone to bring speech and hearing to the deaf mute, and everybody knows of the marvelous results obtained in the cure of the blind and in their education, which relies mainly on their fine sense of touch." Dr. Bourneville is noted especially for what he has done for Jacques Menod, a boy from Marseilles, 16 years old. It is difficult to imagine an uglier monstrosity than young Jacques, even now after six months' scrupulous treatment. Jacques looked like a wild gorilla when he was brought to Vitry last winter. The mouth was abnormally large, with saliva dropping in generous quantity over the thick, sensual lips. His hair grew over his forehead almost down to his eyebrows. He was ever groaning and grumbling and refused to walk or stand up so that he had to be carried all the time, though there was nothing the matter with his legs or spine. Jacques was even lower than the ape, in that he would not stretch out his hands to seize his food. He had to be fed like an infant and then almost by force. Once his eyes were attracted by some bright colored object in the room or garden and he would sit and stare at it for hours, nor tion elsewhere. If left to himself this wretched being would surely perish from starvation. As if by a miracle from heaven Jacques has been put in Lis right mind and in a few months will be sent home entirely cured to his happy parents in Marseilles. He is now learning the carpenter's trade, and he will be apprenticed as soon as he returns home. How has all this been accomplished? Dr. Bourneville says that he has not uttered a harsh word to Jacques nor punished the boy at psychological specialist, has actually any time for disobedience or transgression of discipline. First, there was a week of patient observance of his peculiar form of idiocy and a daily examination of the malformed organs. He was treated as at home, fed with a spoon, conveyed into the garden in tute at Vitry, France, is the all-absorb- a rolling chair, left to mutter and stare at will and at night carried o bed. His tinent. The wonderful results of his nurse in all details gave him maternal care. In the case of Jacques, Dr. Bourneville determined that massage, followed by a special gymnastic course was the best treatment, for his diagnosis revealed that his form of imbecility was traceable mostly to an imperfect development of the facial, manual and pedal lineaments and other peculiar deformities contracted before birth and permitted to become aggravated by ignorant nursing. Electric and medicated baths were also prescribed by the doctor. It was weeks before Jacques could stretch out his arms and months before he could stand up without assistance. As to feeding Jacques his fondness for certain delicacles were soon ascertained. These were finally given to him at every meal, but only when he would reach out his hands for them. Curious musical instruments attracted the patient's attention. The only time when he was known to smile was when the doctor would play on his violin. Jacques soon learned to walk from his room to the farther end of the garden if he wanted to see and hear the doctor play. After three months Jacques fed himself, could walk and talk and dress himself. Then began a slow course of gymnastics, while Dr. Bourne ville left nothing undone to reduce the abnormal facial formations by massage and the mental restoration by the pestalozzian method of instruction. The latter method consists in object lessons, the garden and the streets and the rooms taking the place of

A STORY OF EDISON.

Takes a Past Message and Secures Emplayment. A tall young countryman, looking as green as a suit of "butternut" clothes and a slouch hat could make him, applied for work in the Broad street, New York, office of Maury Smith, in 1871. Mr. Smith was manager of the consolidated telegraph lines, then in opposition to the Western Union, Lake all managers, he could make room for an expert operator, and told the young rustic that an engagement depended altogether upon his skill. "Try me; I can keep up with the best of 'em,' said the stranger. Mr. Smith noticed that the applicant appeared to be quite deaf: but, out of curiosity, and possibly with the idea of having some fun with him, he gave him a table and told him to "receive" a message then due from Washington, "You will have to work pretty fast," he warned him. for our Washington man is in the habit of rushing things." As a matter of fact there was no message expected from Washington, nor did the wire lead there. Mr. Smith connected the receiver with a "sender" in another part of the same operating room, and put his fastest operator, "Dick' Hutchinson at work sending a two thousand word message. Edison, for it was he, grasped a pen, and as soon as the instrument began to click he dashed off the copy in a large, round, legible hand. While deaf to all other sounds, he could catch the faintest metallic click. On came the message faster and faster, twenty, thirty, forty words a minute. A crowd of operators gathered around, curiosity and then amazement depicted on their faces. Page after page was reeled off, with never a break, and with the last click of the instrument, the forty-minute message had been received perfectly

Circle. "The cat came back" because she instinctively comprehends distances and cirections, but who would suppose that a cat can exactly locate the center of a circle? You would naturally suppose that careful measurement and more than cat intelligence would be required for such a task, but a cat can, for it has done that very thing. says the New York Herald. The cat referred to lives up in Orleans county, and when her owner tried to put her in a box for removal to his summer home she escaped and took refuge under a circular outbuilding. There was only room enough for her to run under, and there she sat, oblivious to all threats and entreaties. A stick ten feet long was procured, but the cat did not move as it was poked at her. The fact that the stick and the owner's arm were just long enough to reach within four inches of "Kitty Buff." The man took the stick to the opposite side of the building, and came just as near and no nearer the cat than before. She held the position first taken without moving an Inch. He made a circuit of the building and tried to reach her from all points. out always with the same result. She was just beyond his reach from every direction. Chinese Pawnbrokers.

Among the Canton houses there are occasional exceptions to the usual onestoried or low constructions. Some of these are built like square towers four or five stories high, with no outside windows save at a considerable distance above the ground, and no outside projections by which thieves might get in. These establishments are called pawnshops. But they appear to more resemble banks. It is usual among the Chinese to deposit their possessions of value, when not in use, in these establishments. The people also store there in summer their winter clothing, on which money is often lent. To have dealings with a pawnshop is in no way considered derogatory to a Chinese gentleman's dignity.

Berole Treatment. In guiana, if a child is slow in its movements the parents apply an ant to the child, instead of a whip, to make it move faster. This little ant blies more cruelly than a mosquito, and its bite is apt to be troublesome afterwards. As you can Imagine, this treatment does not make the child kind to others, and the children of Guiana do not reckon their age by years but by their ability to endure pain. Until he gets to the point where he can let the Hucu ant bite him without wincing he is considered merely a baby.--Kansas City Independent.

Carden Spot of World. Ceylon is the garden spot of the world, says a traveler, and I firmly believe the Garden of Paradise was located there, and that Adam and Eve lived there. While the elimate is warm, it is a pleasure to drink the air and to gaze upon the wonders of the vegetation there. The human eye can picture no more wonderful or pleasing sight.
